METRONET: Thornlie Line Extension

WA Labor will build METRONET, an integrated and coordinated transport plan to connect our suburbs and fix congestion on our local roads such as Garden Street.

WA Labor's METRONET plan includes building the new Thornlie Line, joining the Mandurah Line and Armadale Line.

The Thornlie Line will be the start of METRONET's Circle Line, allowing east-west travel and creating a true transport network

Kelvin Road Crossing a Priority to Fix

People tell me Kelvin Road level crossing is an "accident waiting to happen".

Early responses to my community survey say the combination of the railway line crossing Kelvin Road so close to Albany Highway, plus bus stops, side roads and a fair number of pedestrians makes this a priority to fix.

It's vital I hear as many views as possible from local people as WA Labor develops its METRONET policy.

At Your Street Corner

I've been out holding street corner meetings in Gosnells and Maddington.

That's how I know that people want a better and quicker response from the Police when there's trouble brewing. The Liberals have failed to boost Police numbers. It's another Broken Promise.

Look out for the invitation in your letterbox, or let me know if you'd like me to hold a street corner meeting in your neck of the woods.

Lights Needed to Fix Yale/ Garden/ Nicholson Jams

After a years of community campaigning, works to remove the level crossing on Nicholson Road in Canning Vale has been promised. Works should commence in early 2016.

Once the level crossing on Nicholson Road in Canning Vale is gone, the traffic will flow uninterrupted. However, this will create problems at the roundabout.

The Barnett Government's decision to claw back nearly $500,000 set aside for traffic lights at the big roundabout was shortsighted and will add to traffic woes.

It's difficult to get on the roundabout now. There will be more and worse collisions.

I'm campaigning to get the money back on the table.

300 new rail cars cancelled by Barnett Liberals

The Barnett Liberals' broken promise to order 300 new rail carriages is just another reason you cannot believe anything they say on public transport.

Anyone who uses public transport knows we need more rail carriages and new train lines. Our trains will only get more crowded as Perth's population grows.

WA Labor is committed to building METRONET to deliver an integrated transport network and will never shy away from tackling the congestion problem facing Perth.

After years of community campaigning, this level crossing will finally be removed.

An example of what the new intersection will look like.

Lights are needed at the roundabout to help ease congestion - particularly once traffic flow increases.

“More light!” says Mr Wilmark Girsang

Streetlight Shambles

Why is it taking so long to get these Forest Lakes streetlights working again?

Local resident Wilmark Girsang reported that two lamps on Forest Lakes Drive were dark in July this year.

A promise to fix them by 3 November has not been met. Residents are now left wondering when they will be fixed in light of the Barnett Liberal Government’s budget cuts.

The Barnett Liberal Government’s budget mismanagement and expenditure on pet projects mean we don’t get the services we deserve.

If you have experienced delays in getting street lights fixed in your area, please contact my office on 9493 2223.

Multicultural Food Fair celebrates diversity

Matt Keogh, Sue Ellery MLC and Chris Tallentire

Well done to the City of Gosnells and everyone involved in hosting yet another fantastic Multicultural Food Fair to celebrate our communities diversity.

Labor’s local Federal candidate Matt Keogh came to Langford with Sue Ellery and I to enjoy the fair.

It was abuzz with happy, hungry people digging into Indian, Thai, Malay, South African, Brazilian, Palestinian, Aboriginal, Spanish and Nepalese.

Our bit of Australia is proudly home to nationalities with over 150 languages and dialects.
